

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The mobile information terminal comprises; the case that is formed in tabular and in size of the palm; the display device that is stored such that the screen exposes to outside; the electronic circuit that is stored in the case and controls the display device; the protective frame that is arranged on the edge portion of the case and surrounds the edge portion; and the hooking portion that sticks out toward outside of the case from the protective frame, and is formed for fingers to be inserted.